

Frequently Asked Questions

- How do I submit a sample to your lab?
 - For all out-of-state samples, please send us the appropriate request for analysis form (preferably before we receive the sample) then contact the agency currently in possession of the sample to notify them you would like it transferred for independent testing.
- Do you provide shipping materials or FedEx billing number?
 - Yes, please contact us for further information.
- What is needed to transfer a sample to your lab?
 - Once we receive the request form, we need nothing further. For the agency sending us the sample, we require all evidence have tracking number and a copy of our evidence record/chain of custody can be provided upon request for transfer purposes.
- How will I receive my results?
 - We will email the results to the email provided on the request for analysis form. Contact us if you would like the results mailed to you instead.
- When will I receive my results?
 - See our testing/pricing list for standard turnaround times. Note all turnaround times are based on when we receive the sample and not when we receive the request.
- I have a court date coming up and I need my results soon, what should I do?
 - Contact us as soon as you can! While we cannot promise results will be ready by the next court date, we are able to provide rush testing options when possible.

- Who will have access to the results?

- Only the submitting counsel and subject will have access to our results. We will not share results with anyone else unless RML receives a written agreement from the submitting counsel.

- Do you provide DNA testing?

- Unfortunately, we do not provide DNA testing, however we are able to provide a bloodstain card to another laboratory for DNA analysis. Please contact us for more information.
